

Introducing Government and Politics

What is Politics?

1. "Man is by nature a political animal."
2. Politics is the authoritative allocation of resources.
3. Politics is that who gets what, when and how.
4. Politics is the sign of who gets what, when, and why.
5. Politics is the study of how people get what they want.
6. The meaning of the term Politics has been confined to business and activity which has to with the actual conduct of the affairs of the state.
7. The process by which we select our governmental leaders and what policies these leaders produce. Politics produces authoritative decisions about public issues.

What is Government?

1. A government is the system to govern a state or community.
2. The institution or institutions that possess the basic authority and can legitimately use force to rule over a society.
3. The body of persons that constitutes the governing authority of a political unit or organization
4. Government the system or form by which a community or other political unit is governed.
5. Government, the political system by which a country or community is administered and regulated.
6. A government is the system or group of people governing an organized community, generally a state.
7. Government is the institution through which a society makes and enforces its public policies.
8. A government is a system of social control under which right to make laws, and the right to enforce them, is vested in a particular group in society.
9. The institutions and processes through which public policies are made for society.
10. A set of individuals with both the power and authority to control and direct the affairs of a group, society or country.
11. Government is an organization or administration in which a group of people work together as a unit (elected by people of the country) to run the nation as indicated by the defined law.
12. Government is a group of people who rule or run the institution of a country. In other words, it may be said that a government is the body of representatives that governs and controls the state at a given time. Government is the medium through which the power of the state is employed.

Political Science: Meaning, Definition, Nature and Scope

Political Science-Meaning

The English word politics is derived from the Greek word 'polis' which means the 'city-state' (a generalized form of political organization existing in ancient Greece), polity (government) and politeia (Constitution). As such, politics, in the original Greek sense, is a study of city-state and its administration in practical as well as philosophical terms.

Definition of Political Science

Traditional Definition:

These early definitions of political science dealt generally with state and government.

1. Paul Janet: "Political Science is that part of social science which treats the foundations of the State and the principles of government." (Kapur, A.C. Principles of Political Science, S. Chand & Company Ltd., New Delhi, 2006, p.17)

2. Dr. Garner: "Political Science begins and ends with the state." (Agarwal, R. C.: Political Theory- Principles of Political Science, S. Chand & Company Ltd., New Delhi, 2007, p.3)
3. Sir John Seeley: "Political Science investigates the phenomena of Government as Political Economy deals with Wealth, Biology with life, Algebra with numbers and Geometry with space and magnitude." (Agarwal, R. C.: Political Theory-Principles of Political Science, S. Chand & Company Ltd., New Delhi, 2007, p.3).
4. Stephen Leacock: "Political Science deals with the Government" (Agarwal, R. C.: Political Theory- Principles of Political Science, S. Chand & Company Ltd., New Delhi, 2007, p.3).

Modern Definition:

In the beginning of the 20th century there developed a new way of looking at political science. This new approach is known as behavioral approach. The main thrust of the new view is the treatment of politics as an activity and a process.

1. Harold Laswell: "Politics is the study of influence and the influential" or "the study of the shaping and sharing of power."
2. David Easton: "Politics is the authoritative allocation of values."
3. Catlin: "Political Science is the study of the act of human and social control".
4. Andrew Heywood: "Politics can be defined as an activity through which people make, preserve and amend the general rules under which they live." (Source: Agarwal, R. C.: Political Theory- Principles of Political Science, S. Chand & Company Ltd., New Delhi, 2007)

Difference between politics and Political Science

Modern writers make a distinction between "politics" and "political Science"

1. Frederic Pollock, for the first time, broke up the subject into two parts:

- (A) Theoretical politics and
- (B) Practical or applied politics

Nature of Political Science

Political Science is a part of social sciences and therefore is different from that of physical sciences like physics and chemistry.

So the question which concerns the nature of the subject is whether Political Science is a Science or an Art and how the nature of the discipline has undergone changes in the 20th century.

Political Science: An Art

Science is universal and a systematic body of knowledge, based on accurate and impartial facts, through which observation, comparison and experimentation can be made.

Apparently, Political Science does not have some of these features. And therefore Earnest Barker (British political thinker), James Bryce (British political thinker), Charles A. Beard (British historian) and others were reluctant to accept Political Science as a science.

The following are some arguments against the notion of Political Science as a Science:

- A) Lack of precise and standard definitions of terms and concepts.
- B) Complexity of political phenomena due to variation in the nature and habits of people.
- C) Diversity of 'environments' in which political developments take place.
- D) Problems of experimentation to arrive at valid conclusions.

Changing dynamics of the meaning and nature of Political Science

- A) After the World War II, the meaning and nature of political science have undergone a sea change.
- B) Now political science is closely related to all aspects of social relations, rather than an activity centered on the institutions of government.
- C) So the aims and objectives of political science have changed due to factors such as the rise of the power theory and behaviouralism. New understanding of Political Science
- D) Political Science has ceased to be merely the science of state-craft.
- E) Political Science is concerned with all facets of power relations and human behavior having political implications in the society.
- F) Politics is portrayed as a process of conflict resolution, in which rival views or competing interests are reconciled for the benefit of all. The new meaning of Political Science includes the dynamics of power and struggle at various levels—local, regional, national and international.
- G) So the aims and objectives of Political Science have changed due to factors such as the rise of the power theory and behaviouralism.

Scope of Political Science

Political science as a discipline deals with various aspects like:

- A) Study of state and government- it deals with the nature and formation of the State and tries to understand various forms and functions of the government.
- B) Study of associations and institutions- in organized way the fundamental problems of political science include, first, an investigation of the origin and the nature of the state, second an inquiry into the nature, history and forms of political institutions and third, deduction, therefore, so far as possible, of laws of political growth and development.
- C) Study of national and international problems- modern demands of defense of territory, representative government and national unity has made political science not only the science of political independence but that of state sovereignty also.
- D) Study of political behavior of man- it may be said that the character of political science in all its parts is determined by its basic pre-supposition regarding man.
- E) Study of the past, present and future of development- political science attempts to explain the meaning and the essential nature of the state and deals with the laws of its progress and development within itself and in relation to international organizations and other states.
- F) Study of the concepts of power, authority & influence- with the behavioral revolution the central topic for study has become the study of power. Consequently the scope has widened to include new aspects like political socialization, political culture, political development and informal structures like interest and pressure groups.

Conclusion

- A) In the contemporary time, the meaning of Political Science has become more and more inclusive.
- B) Earlier political science had been defined by many scholars from the point of view of the State and Government.
- C) But now the term political system brings the study of political science closer to other systems such as the economic system, the cultural system, the legal system and other social systems all of which operate within the larger social environment.
- D) Regarding the nature of Political Science there is a difference of opinion among scholars whether political science is a science or an art.

Political scientists have put forward some arguments in favor of the notion that political science is a science, such as –

- A) political theory has developed based on facts and verifiable data, like, voting behavior and theories of election;
- B) In political science there is much scope for experiments, for example the government itself is a continuous process of experiment;
- C) broad conclusions can be drawn in political science;
- D) empirical studies are based on careful observation and classification.

E) Political scientists today employ survey methods, graphs, charts and other scientific tools to arrive at their research conclusions.

At the same time another section of political scientists opine that political science is an art and they put forward some argument in favor of this notion, such as—

- A) lack of precise and standard definitions of terms and concepts;
- B) complexity of political phenomena due to variation in the nature and habits of people;
- C) diversity of 'environments' in which political developments take place;
- D) problems of experimentation to arrive at valid conclusions.

Impact of Digital Technologies on Government Services

Here are just some of the societal benefits that occur when governments integrate current-generation digital technology into their processes:

1. Better Efficiency

Replacing paper-based processes and legacy computer systems with newer platforms can remove much of the friction that often plagues public services. As a whole, contemporary digital systems have thoroughly minimized the need for human inputs, making it possible to seamlessly transfer data to wherever it is needed without the need to repeat data entry. Updating to modern digital systems should thus not only make data management faster but also more accurate.

2. More Responsive Governance

The efficiency boost created by digitalizing services isn't just a win for users' convenience. It also gives public agencies the capability to act on citizens' concerns faster than ever before. With fewer forms to fill out and validate, government workers are freer to focus on the key aspects of their jobs, resulting in better service.

Soon, the integration of artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning (ML) into established digital platforms may increase government responsiveness even more. Going back to Singapore, digital technologies on the cutting edge of development are already being used to instantly detect emergencies as they happen. A wider roll-out of these systems may one day increase public safety without straining limited manpower.

3. More Grounded Decision-Making

Faster, more accurate data handling also helps with long-term decision-making. Properly implemented digital systems increase the timeliness and trustworthiness of available data, which means that policymakers can have more confidence that the solutions they're crafting are appropriate for their constituents' needs. This can result in fewer delays of vital public projects and increased transparency on the ROI of public funds.

4. A Reduction in Welfare Fraud

Ordinary citizens and business owners are often rightly protective of public benefits given to them. While this concern is normally a good thing, this protectiveness can also breed widespread distrust that degrades societal cohesion, particularly when public coffers are limited compared to the range of public services.

Digital transformation has already presented an answer through modern national ID initiatives. According to the World Bank, the digitalization of national IDs is associated with reductions in fraud related to public services, effectively expanding the resources available for legitimate beneficiaries. While there are legitimate concerns about such digital systems, they have generally been well received by both the public and government leaders wherever they have been implemented.

5. Better Data Security

Data held in paper archives and legacy onsite computer systems have proven vulnerable to online and offline threats. Events like physical calamities and social upheavals have often resulted in the total destruction of data in these systems, with the effects continuing to reverberate decades later. Putting everything in modern, cloud-based digital systems with multiple redundancies will be key in securing invaluable public data for good.

6. Improved Civic Engagement

Even today, digital technology is already playing a key role in how people the world over communicates with public offices. Digital transformation is now widely seen as a key ingredient in empowering ordinary people to make their voices known. Importantly, digital platforms have allowed previously disenfranchised people to collectively exert necessary pressure on the leaders tasked with handling their concerns.

7. Increased Opportunities for Innovation

Finally, the speed, efficiency, and transparency enabled by digitalized public services open up new ways of addressing societal challenges. For instance, the push for digital payments worldwide has been credited with increasing financial inclusion and a reduction in petty corruption, increasing entrepreneurial opportunities in the process. Likewise, digital public services have also reduced red tape wherever they have been implemented, leaving innovators freer to pursue their ideas.

The Argument for Smarter Government Services

Contrary to common fears that the digital transformation of public services would create an ever-more powerful “Big Brother,” bringing governments and the wider public online will empower both to an unprecedented degree. With smarter online public services, ordinary citizens can be better served and heard by the agencies tasked with serving them. Meanwhile, the expanded digitalization of services will give leaders the visibility and confidence they need to pursue specific and actionable policy changes.

The great news is that governments do not necessarily have to pursue digital transformation at the same scale as Singapore. Even relatively modest changes such as collating services of different but related agencies under one website can create positive ripples across society. As advanced economies work out the inefficiencies in their own digital services, they can serve as examples for others further behind in their digitalization projects, reducing the costs associated with building sound government systems online.

Political Ideology

What is political ideology?

- * One's basic beliefs about power, political beliefs and the role of government.
 - * Grows out of economical, educational and social condition and experiences

An ideology is a set of opinions or beliefs of a group or an individual. Very often ideology refers to a set of political beliefs or a set of ideas that characterize a particular culture.

The roles of political ideologies

The role of political ideologies is to establish a set of ideas that can be used to provide the foundation of political organization. As a result, all political ideologies have three specific features:

1. A realistic interpretation of society as it currently is.
2. An idealized interpretation of society. Essentially, an idea of what society should be like.
3. An action plan on how to create a society that reflects the needs and wants of all its citizens.
Essentially, a plan of how to get from number one to number two.

Authority

Introduction

- Authority is that form of power which is legalized and legitimized . Authority is a form of power e.g. a statute giving power to an minister. If a person has power due to a special office , he occupies, this is known as authority.
- Example- Police Commissioner has authority to issue order and get them obeyed by virtue of authority he occupies.
- Power + legitimacy = Authority.
- Authority consists of two important components: power and legitimacy.
- Authority means legitimate power which has been approved by the people or power in accordance with the constitution or the law of the state.
- A government officer is competent to use authority- his authority is clearly defined.

Weber's Three Types of Authority

Traditional	Patrimony Patriarchy
Charismatic	Napoleon César Chávez Mother Teresa
Rational-Legal	Modern British Parliament U.S. presidency

TRADITIONAL AUTHORITY

Traditional authority is a type of authority that relies on cultural norms and practices for its legitimacy.

DEFINITION

"Resting on an established belief in the sanctity of immemorial traditions and the legitimacy of those exercising authority under them ... obedience is owed to the person of the chief who occupies the traditionally sanctioned position of authority and who is (within its sphere) bound by tradition." (Weber, 1978)

EXAMPLES

- 1 Monarchy
- 2 Patriarchy
- 3 Patrimonialism
- 4 Feudalism
- 5 Caste systems
- 6 Religion

RATIONAL-LEGAL AUTHORITY

Rational-legal authority is a form of government in which decisions are made based on laws and regulations, rather than on the personal whims of those in power.

DEFINITION

"In Rational Legal Authority, obedience is owed to the legally established impersonal order. It extends to the persons exercising the authority of office under it only by virtue of the formal legality of their commands and only within the scope of authority of the office."
(Weber, 1978)

EXAMPLE

The nation-state exercises rational-legal authority by employing bureaucrats to monitor the movement of money (i.e. tax agencies), passing laws, and operating a judiciary system. The state bureaucracy collect as much data about the citizenry as possible. They then use this data to enforce the laws.

Primary vs. Secondary Authorities

- Primary:
 - Positive sources of law – create rights and obligations.
 - Federal and state.
 - Examples: Constitutions, statutes, administrative rules and regulations, case law.
 - May be binding.
- Secondary:
 - Not positive sources of law – do not create rights or obligations.
 - Describe, summarize, criticize, seek changes to law.
 - Examples: legal encyclopedias, law review articles, restatements, uniform and model laws.
 - Never binding.

Comparison Table

Sr No	Particular	Charismatic	Traditional	Legal Rational
1	Type of ruler	Charismatic leader	Dominant personality	Functional superiors or bureaucratic officials
2	Position determined by	Having dynamic personality	Established traditional or routine	Legal established authority
3	Ruled Using	Extra- ordinary qualities and exceptional powers	Acquired or inherited (hereditary qualities)	Virtue of rationally established norms, decrees, and other rules and regulations
4	Legitimized	Victories and success to community	Established traditional or routine	General belief in the formal correctness of these rule and those who enact them are considered a legitimized authority

Comparison Table

Sr No	Particular	Charismatic	Traditional	Legal Rational
5	Loyalty	Interpersonal & personal allegiance and devotion	Based on traditional allegiance (commitment)	To authority/ rules
6	Cohesion (Structure / organization	Emotionally unstable and volatile	Feeling of common purpose	Abiding by rules
7	Leadership	Rulers and followers (disciples)	Established forms of social conduct	Rules, not rulers

Difference between power and authority

Authority is legally enforced and is derived from level of position in an organization.	Power however is individual and independent and originates from charisma and social positioning.
Authority is formal based upon superior and subordinate relationship.	Power is informal and is based upon individual understanding.
Since authority is related with position in an organization, it has limited scope and is confined to organizational structure	Power is linked with an individual and transcends boundaries.
Authority is just and applied equally	Power may be used indiscriminately.
Authority is institutional and is given by organization to a position. Anybody who is offered that position, enjoys the authority attached to that position.	Power is not so given by the institution. It is one's ability to influence others decision and it is acquired by the people.
Authority relationship can be found out by anybody by looking up the organization chart. There are authority centers	But there is no power centers dotted on the organization chart and it cannot be located anywhere else.
Authority is always attached to the position. The higher the position on the organization chart, the bigger the authority.	Power has no relation with the position. A person even at low level may enjoy the power of influencing the decision making or even highly placed official having a lot of authority, may be proved powerless
Authority has no concern with the politics because it is not attached to a person. Power is attached to a person.	Element of politics is inherent in power

What is Power in Politics?

1. Thomas Hobbes
 - 'Power simply is no more, but the excess of the power of one above that of another.'
2. Max Weber
 - Power is 'the probability that one actor within a social relationship will be in a position to carry out his will despite resistances.'
3. Robert Dahl
 - 'A has power over B to the extent that he can get B to do something that B would not otherwise do.'
4. Hannah Arendt
 - Power is 'the ability not just to act, but to act in concert.'
5. Talcott Parsons
 - Power is a 'mechanism operating to bring about changes... in the process of social interaction.'
6. Foucault
 - 'Power as such does not exist' but power 'needs to be considered as a productive network which runs through the whole social body.'
 - Basis and Types of Power
In a general sense, we can identify three sources of power, namely, positional, relational and expertise:
 - Positional power: This is based on the formal position of a person in an organization or community.
 - Relationships: This is based on the social and cultural capital of a person. Informal power stems from the relationships and alliances you form with others. If you do a favor for someone, the law of reciprocity impacts your relationship. Coalition's and alliances increase your relational power.
 - Expertise: Some people generate power based on their knowledge, expertise, technical competencies and ability to articulate ideas or a vision that others will follow. Communication skills, charisma and trustworthiness help determine personal power. The six bases identified include coercive, reward, legitimate, referent, expert and informational power. The table below explains the basis and types of power.

- Basis of Power Types

Reward	Impersonal Reward; Personal Reward
Legitimacy	Formal Legitimacy; Legitimacy of Reciprocity; Equity; Dependence
Expert	Positive Expert; Negative Expert
Referent	Positive Referent; Negative Referent
Informational	Direct Information; Indirect Information

What is legitimacy according to Marx Weber?

According to Weber, that a political regime is legitimate means that its participants have certain beliefs or faith in regard to it:

In political science, legitimacy is the right and acceptance of an authority, usually a governing law or a regime.

Sources of Political Legitimacy

All governments need legitimacy to survive. But how do governments attain authority? What makes citizens obey or feel loyal toward their governments? Scholars have answered these questions by concluding that political legitimacy comes from several sources:

- Tradition: The government has authority because its citizens have a long tradition of giving it authority and respect. This source mostly comes into play with governments that have been around for a long time.
- Habit: Most people are raised to obey the laws, and they thereby acquire the habit of obeying. Citizens give their government legitimacy and authority because that is what they have always done.
- History: People remember great deeds and events in the country's history, and they obey the government out of a sense of historical pride.
- Religion: In some places, obedience to the government is seen as a religious obligation.

- Ethnic identity: Countries composed of exclusively one ethnic group or whose regime is strongly connected to one ethnic group can inspire obedience through ethnic identity. Members of that ethnic group respect the government because of its link to their ethnicity.
- Results: If a government succeeds in some way—for instance, through a military victory or a thriving economy—citizens may feel loyalty because of that success.
- Elections: A government that holds elections gains legitimacy because citizens believe that the government, composed of elected officials, represents them.
- International recognition: A government gains legitimacy when other governments recognize it and welcome it to the international community.

What is a nation-state simple definition?

A nation-state would be a sovereign territory with one group of individuals who share a common history. Today, a true nation-state in the academic sense of the world does not exist. Nearly every state (country) in the world contains more than one national group.

What is a nation-state and an example?

A nation-state is a sovereign state in which the cultural borders of a nation match the borders of the state. Examples include Iceland and Japan. A multi-state nation is when an ethnic group is a predominant group across multiple states. An example includes Koreans.

What are the 7 characteristics of a nation?

You will notice that the difference between a state and a nation is basically about their different distinguishing features.

- Common Descent
- Geographical Boundaries
- Government
- Common Language
- Infrequent Internal Ethnic Conflicts
- Common Religion
- Same Cultural Practices

1. Common Descent

Persons inhabiting a nation usually have a common origin and descent.

2. Geographical Boundaries

A nation which is at the same time a state has clear-cut geographical boundaries. People that form a nation may live within a defined territory.

3. Government

Most nation-states have their own political institutions that come together to form a government.

4. Common Language

Inhabitants of a nation have a common language

5. Infrequent Internal Ethnic Conflicts

One other unique characteristic (and advantage) of a nation is the fact that conflicts and disagreements are not as pronounced as is the case in diverse and heterogeneous states.

6. Common Religion

People inhabiting the nation tend to have a common religion.

7. Same Cultural Practices

People of a nation usually have common customary or traditional practices. This is perhaps one of the most striking characteristics of a nation.

What do you mean by nationalism?

It holds that each nation should govern itself, free from outside interference (self-determination), that a nation is a natural and ideal basis for a polity, and that the nation is the only rightful source of political power.

What is nationalism and its example?

Nationalism is an ideology that a person's nation is superior to all others. The root of nationalism is often based on shared ethnicity. An example of nationalism can be seen in much of Adolf Hitler's rhetoric. The difference between nationalism and patriotism is the feeling of superiority.

What are the 8 elements/the roots of nationalism?

- Political—desire for power or autonomy.
- Social—concern for group values, customs and traditions.
- Economic—concern for standard of living or monetary gain.
- Culture—shared beliefs and a way of life create a common bond.
- History—a shared past connects people as a group.
- Religion—a common religion helps unites people.
- Language—a common language is a key element of nationalism.
- Territory—a shared land gives people a sense of unity.

What is the simple definition of sovereignty?

- Supreme power especially over a body politic. : Freedom from external control: autonomy. One that is sovereign. Especially: an autonomous state.
- Why is state sovereignty?
- A sovereign state is a state that has the highest authority over a territory. International law defines sovereign states as having a permanent population, defined territory, a
- Government not under another and the capacity to interact with other sovereign states.
- What are sovereignty principles?
- "The principle of sovereignty is one of the fundamental principles of international law and applies in cyberspace. It refers to the supreme authority of every State within its territory to the exclusion of other States, and also in its relations with other States.
- What are sovereignty and its main characteristics?
- Sovereignty is the original power of the state. No internal or external organization can delegate to a state its sovereignty. The state cannot be dependent on any other state for its sovereignty. If the sovereignty of a state is not original, it cannot be called sovereignty. It's an innate feature of the state.

What are the types of sovereignty?

Types of Sovereignty

THE ELEMENTS OF STATE

Sovereignty :

The fourth essential element of the state is sovereignty. The word "sovereignty" means supreme and final legal authority above and beyond which no legal power exists.

Sovereignty has two aspects :

1) Internal sovereignty

2) External sovereignty

✓ Internal sovereignty means that the State is supreme over all its citizens, and associations.

✓ External sovereignty means that the state is independent and free from foreign or outside control.

- Who believed in sovereignty?
- Popular sovereignty in its modern sense is an idea that dates to the social contract school represented by Thomas Hobbes (1588–1679), John Locke (1632–1704), and Jean-Jacques Rousseau (1712–1778).

The current notion of state sovereignty contains four aspects consisting of territory, population, authority and recognition.

What is justice and equity?

Equity is defined as "the state, quality or ideal of being just, impartial and fair." The concept of equity is synonymous with fairness and justice. It is helpful to think of equity as not simply a desired state of affairs or a lofty value.

What is an example of equity and justice?

For example, pursuing health equity means pursuing social justice in health, where no one is denied the possibility to be healthy because they belong to a group that has historically been excluded from accessing health resources.

How is equity different than justice?

Equity and Justice

Practicing equity helps address imbalanced social systems. However, justice can take equity one step further by changing societal systems in order to achieve sustainable and equitable access for future generations in the long-term.

What is the rule of justice and equity?

Justice and equity in this principle surmises the equal, unbiased distribution of justice in a society, but also it may express a sense of ideal, an ultimate goal, or at least a direction that law must follow. The general principle of equity and justice offers a better cohesion to other principles of law.

What is equity vs. equality?

Equality means each individual or group of people is given the same resources or opportunities. Equity recognizes that each person has different circumstances and allocates the exact resources and opportunities needed to reach an equal outcome.

What is an example of equity in society?

Defining Equity

The goal of equity is to help achieve fairness in treatment and outcomes. It's a way in which equality is achieved. For example, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) were written so that people with disabilities are ensured equal access to public places.

Equity is a solution for addressing imbalanced social systems. Justice can take equity one step further by fixing the systems in a way that leads to long-term, sustainable, equitable access for generations to come.

What are the characteristics of equity?

What are "Equity Characteristics"? The term equity characteristics relate to six key characteristics vis-à-vis stocks. These are size, style, volatility, location, stage of development, and type of share.

What are the 5 dimensions of equity?

These conceptions became known as the 5 Dimensions of Equity: aspiration, access, achievement, economic progress, and engagement.

What is the importance of justice in line with equality?

Justice is the collective responsibility of a free and just society, to ensure that civil and human rights are preserved and protected for each individual regardless of gender, race, ethnicity, nation of origin, sexual orientation, class, physical or mental ability, and age.

Types of Liberty

- Natural liberty: Natural liberty means natural freedom of an individual without any restrictions.
- Civil liberty: Civil liberty is the one which is followed by the society and each individual enjoy it.
- Political liberty:
- Individual liberty:
- Economic liberty:
- National liberty:
- Religious liberty:
- Moral liberty:

The eight fundamental rights are right to equality, right to freedom, right against exploitation, right to freedom of religion, cultural and educational rights and right to constitutional remedies.

What are the first 5 liberties?

The five freedoms it protects: speech, religion, press, assembly, and the right to petition the government. Together, these five guaranteed freedoms make the people of the United States of America the freest in the world.

What are the 4 parts of freedom?

His "four essential human freedoms" included some phrases already familiar to Americans from the Bill of Rights, as well as some new phrases: freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

What are the 4 fundamentals of freedom?

- Freedom of speech.
- Freedom of worship.

- Freedom from want,
- Freedom from fear,
- What is the 7 step to freedom?
- Seven Steps to Freedom was created to help answer these questions and more. Love, Acceptance, Forgiveness, Positive life changes, Perseverance in trials and challenges, Hope and vision for a future learns your purpose here on earth and what might be in store for you happily ever after.
- What are the 2 levels of freedom?
- The two most generic forms of freedom are natural freedom, which implies the absence of social constraint upon action; and there is social freedom, which entails the capacity for action (power-to) due to mutually beneficial structural constraint. These two freedoms are in constant tension.
- What are elements of freedom?
- There are two elements that define freedom: Voluntariness and Responsibility. Voluntariness refers to the ability of a person to act out of his or her own free will and self-determination. This means that a person may decide to act or not, and these decisions are made out of his or her own free will.

LIBERTY - FEATURES

- Liberty does not mean the absence of all restraints
- Liberty admits the presence of rational restraints and the absence of irrational restraints.
- Liberty postulates the existence of such conditions as can enable the people to enjoy their rights.
- Liberty enables the individual to develop their personalities.

Cont'd

Aristotle has classified the government on the basis of number ruler/s

TYPE	NORMAL FORM / BEST FORM	PERVERTED FORM / WORST FORM
Rule by One	Monarchy	Tyranny
Rule by Few	Aristocracy	Oligarchy
Rule by Many	Polity	Democracy

Aristotle's best Government...

- However, since that ideal is hard to achieve, and even harder to sustain, Aristotle advocated a form of mixed government, or "Polity", in which all citizens "rule and are ruled by turn", and power is monopolized by no particular class.
- Aristotle's best Government was a Polity, which is a mix of an aristocracy with some sense of democracy, supported by a strong middle class
- Aristotle was a vigorous critic of democracy.

Classification of State

- Aristotle, classified states on the basis of two principles:-
- (1) In whom the sovereign powers are vested?
- (2) Whether it is exercised for the good of the community or for the good of the ruler?
- If it is good for the community then it is a pure or correct state. If it is good for the ruler it is a deviant state

Origin of the states (Evolutionary theory)

Most accepted theory among political thinkers.

Reason is neither divinity nor deliberative efforts.

Result of historical evolution of human beings

Beginning is impossible to be traced.

Factors led to development of the states.

1. Kinship
2. Common worship.
3. Religion.
4. Force.
5. Economics.
6. Political consciousness.

6. Political consciousness.

Helped, moral, political and intellectual development.

Differences between State and Government :

State		Government
1	State consists of population, territory, government and sovereignty.	Government is part of the state
2	State possesses original powers.	Powers of the government are derived from the state
3	State is permanent and continues forever.	Government is temporary it may come and go.
4	State is abstract and invisible.	Government is concrete and is visible.

- Kinship— blood relationship played a considerable part in early civic development. It brought members of family together.
- Religion— it helped unification of political communities. Religion reinforced sense of unity and respect for authority.
- War or Force— military was used for defense and conquest. A sense of loyalty to the ruler was established. It helped in development of political sovereignty.
- Property or Economic factors— protection of property from military raids played important role in state building
- Political consciousness— the awareness to have a common authority to meet certain common ends helped in state building.

Government is the organisation or machinery or agency or magistracy of the State which makes, implements, enforces and adjudicates the laws of the state. Government is the third essential element of the State. The state exercises its sovereign power through its government.

Thus the distinction between the state and nation is clear. See the table below.

No	State	Nation
1	Existed not only at present but also in the ancient period	Modern phenomenon or occurrence
2	It is legal political	It is ethnic cultural
3	People organized for law within a definite territory.	People psychologically joined together with common will to live together
4	A state must be sovereign.	People continue as a nation even if they do not remain Sovereign
5	Inhabited (populated) by heterogeneous groups of people	Inhabited (populated) by homogeneous groups of people.

What is "the state" ?

Taken from the Latin stare (to stand) a state is a political community that occupies a definite territory; having an organized government with the authority to make and enforce laws without the consent of a higher authority.

- * Synonymous with the term country and nation-state
- * Not to be confused with nation, which is defined as a group of people united by some common bond.

THE ELEMENTS OF STATE

From the above definitions, it is clear that the following are the elements of the state :-

Physical bases of the State

1. Population
2. Territory

Political bases of the State

1. Government
2. Sovereignty

Four Theories - Origin of State

- 1) Evolutionary Theory - "State evolved from family" the head of the primitive family was the authority that served as the government.
- 2) Force Theory - emerged when all the people were brought under the authority of one person or group.
- 3) Divine Right Theory - The Gods have given the leaders the right to rule. (Ancient China, Egypt, etc)
- 4) Social Contract Theory - When the people give/surrender the power needed to maintain order to the state. Thomas Hobbs- people surrender rights in return for protection with no right to break contract; John Locke - Yes, but if gov't fails to protect rights, people may justly break contract.

Articles 65 of the constitution provide a unicameral legislature for Bangladesh. It is only one house to be known as the 'House of Nation'.

7. Directive Principle:

Part II, Article 8 to 25 of the constitution provides the directive principle (fundamental principle of state policy). The main principles are: - Nationalism, Socialism, Democracy, secularism. Government must ensure these principles on their governing policy.

8. Fundamental Right:

Fundamental rights are absolute rights a citizen of a country. Part III and Article 27 to 44 of the constitution provide 18 fundamental rights such as equality before law, equality of opportunity in public employment, right to protection of law, protection of right to life and personal liberty, freedom of movement, freedom of thought etc. Fundamental rights protected by the constitutional guarantee. If executive violate these rights the defendant can go Supreme Court for remedy according to under Article 44 of this constitution.

9. Parliamentary Form of government:

The constitution of Bangladesh provides a Westminster type of parliamentary system.

10. Independence of judiciary:

Ombudsman

Part V, Article 77 of the constitution provides a ombudsman system to overview the activities of civil bureaucracy, to eradicate corruption in the administration and to ensure the responsibility of the government. But till now this office has not yet been implemented in Bangladesh.

THE ELEMENTS OF STATE

Sovereignty :

The fourth essential element of the state is sovereignty. The word "sovereignty" means supreme and final legal authority above and beyond which no legal power exists. Sovereignty has two aspects :

1) Internal sovereignty

2) External sovereignty

✓ Internal sovereignty means that the State is supreme over all its citizens, and associations.

✓ External sovereignty means that the state is independent and free from foreign or outside control.

Territory

< People cannot constitute a state, unless they inhabit in a definite territory >

< When they reside permanently in a fixed place, they develop a community of interests and a sense of unity >

< It becomes easy to organise them into a political unit and control them >

< So the state requires a fixed territory, with clearly demarcated boundaries over which it exercises undisputed authority. Territory is its "material basis" >

Population

Territory

Government

Sovereignty

Population

It is the people who make the state. Population is essential for the state. Greek thinkers were of the view that the population should neither be too big nor too small. According to Plato the ideal number would be 5040. According to Aristotle, the number should be neither too large nor too small. It should be large enough to be self sufficing and small enough to be well governed.

THE ELEMENTS OF STATE

Government : Government is the third element of the state. There can be no state without government. Government is the working agency of the state. It is the political organization of the state. Prof. Appadorai defined government as the agency through which the force of the State is formulated, expressed and realized. According to C.F. Strong, In order to make and enforce laws the state must have highest authority. This is called the Government.
